

Information for offer holders: BA (Hons) Architecture

This document contains important information from your course team about what to expect from your studies, including what kit you'll need to participate in your course.

We recommend visiting our Coronavirus information pages regularly for the latest advice and support to help you study safely.

We are looking forward to welcoming you to BA (Hons) Architecture in September. We want to tell you a little more about our plans for 2021/22 academic year.

Covid-19 has presented challenges for everyone over the last year, but it has also presented opportunities to develop and reflect on our teaching and learning in relation to our disciplines in art, design and performance. We intend to use an informed learning approach that is led by pedagogic best practice.

Using student and staff feedback from this year we have developed our teaching principles to achieve a blend of online and on-campus learning experiences appropriate to your subject discipline.

We are looking forward to welcoming you back to the campus. We know that the opportunity to learn face-to-face in groups is important to you and is also a great way to teach your architecture and design studio. You will be expected to attend these sessions on-campus. Where possible your on-campus teaching sessions will be timetabled on no more than two days to minimise your travel. Whilst you are on-campus, there will be study areas including our library for you to book space to work in.

Design studio teaching will be on-campus in the Spatial Practices studios. Lectures will be delivered online but will always be recorded and available for you to watch again later at your own pace. Digital resources, software and packages will be taught online, allowing you to acquire industry relevant skills. One-to-one tutorials with your subject tutors and personal academic tutors will be conducted primarily online to allow flexibility. We host our Spatial Practices events online as this facilitates the widest possible access to the different approaches and practices of our subject and allows you to access these sessions in your own time.

Each course unit is designed to be a blend of learning experiences for the subject discipline.

There will be a programme of online and on-campus induction events called Big Welcome, so look out for emails telling you more about these. There will also be course induction events in your first week.

We know from experience that things can change very rapidly, so we have plans in place just in case we must adapt to further restrictions or other events, and we have designed our timetables to make this possible. Your timetable will be published in early September, and we look forward to welcoming you when term starts.
