Module Overview

This 3 week course gives you an authentic Central Saint Martins fashion design experience. It uses experimental research and design development pathways that are original and innovative. Please note, this course is aimed at high level and ambitious fashion students. You will be working with dedicated students and tutors from around the world and produce exceptional work.

This course is going to start with extensive research exercise. You will then go on to develop and interpret your research ideas into garment designs, prints and embroideries. A series of workshops led by industry professionals will cover pattern-making and fashion illustration. You will explore a range of different techniques to present your ideas to an advanced portfolio standard. The course includes a series of research projects, visits, design and illustration sessions, and individual and group tutorials. You will be expected to be ambitious and really push your ideas to explore what is possible to achieve through the design process. The course ends with a final critique in which you will present your work in an exhibition format. Designs finished in a toile format will be part of an audience attended fashion show organised by Summer Study Abroad - Fashion Communication students.

This is a challenging and demanding course aimed at high level fashion students.

Class hours: 60 hours
Non-class hours: 15 hours
Course level: Advanced
Entry requirements: For fashion degree students or fashion design professionals.
Advanced Entry Requirements

This course has certain entry requirements. Please complete the below questions. Please e-mail them, together with examples of your work, to studyabroad@csm.arts.ac.uk

- Where are you currently studying fashion?
- What interests you most about this course?
- Please briefly explain about your technical ability
- Please describe a successful project you have completed.
- What skills are you bringing to the course that you want to improve?
- What are your plans for the future?

Please also email 5 to 10 images of work from your fashion portfolio. Images must be submitted digitally in the format of a single multi-page PDF file (10MB or less).

Project Description

During the course you will design a contemporary fashion collection based on the course brief specifically designed by the tutors to challenge your preconceived ideas about fashion.

You will need to apply original research, design development and pattern cutting to create an ambitious final collection.

You will be assessed on your presentation of work in a final exhibition at the end of the 3 week course:

- Rough designs
- Selected collection
- Illustration exploration

Students will be expected to present their work and explain their inspiration and motivation behind their ideas and choices in tutorials. Students will be graded on the quality of their presentation and work presented from a total of 100%.

- 30% Research
- 30% Design development and final designs for a collection
- 30% Illustration development and final illustration to portfolio standard
- 10% Personal progress throughout the 3 weeks: creativity & initiative

Aims

- Be able to apply original research for fashion, fashion design, observational drawing, draping, pattern cutting and design development through to finished designs, realised in garment form
- Be able to present portfolio clearly

Learning Outcomes

- An ability to research concepts which can be developed into design (Research)
- An ability to translate research concepts into creative design solutions in response to a brief (Analysis)
- Applied knowledge of pattern-cutting and garment construction skills and techniques appropriate to the course (Technical Competence)
- Research skills through the synthesis of primary and secondary sources and demonstrate those skills in the development of a coherent argument (Analysis, Research)
